Remarks From the Boys—While Looking 'Em Over in "The Boys' Shop"

Gee! This is some coat! Looka the way it's made up. A swell collar that I can turn up and give "Old Jack Frost" the Ha! Ha! And such room in those sleeves—why, I can give a guy a punch without ever taking it off. And just looka at that Scotch Plaid lining—and, Oh! Boy! Pipe off the belt. SOME-COAT! Eh, Dad?

I tell you I've had on a lot of suits in my day, but this one has it over 'em all. Sure is a peach of a color—never anything as swell as a dark blue with a small red stripe. And looka the way it fits. Dad hasn't anything over me, has he mother? For these clothes are sure tailored like his.

MANY EAGER FOR UNIVERSITY HERE

Proposition to Bring Presbyterian Institution to Memphis Gets New Impetus

The board of directors of the Southwestern Presbyterian university has been notified of the interest that the business men of Memphis are taking in the location of the institution here and of the enthusiasm and promises of co-operation on the part of the Chamber of Commerce.

At the suggestion of W. H. Fitz-Hugh, president of the Memphis Chamber of Commerce, a committee of business men interested in the location of the Southwestern Presbyterian university at Memphis met with the educational committee of the Chamber of Commerce Friday afternoon to further plans for promoting the project of locating the Presbyterian school here, and to prepare a definite proposal to submit to the executive committee of the Chamber of Commerce for its consideration.

The authorities in control of the university have declared their willingness to contribute $1,000,000 for the establishment of the university at a suitable new location, provided that the city selected contribute an additional $500,000.

All arrangements have been completed for the Presbyterian campaign to raise the $1,000,000 university fund in Tennessee, Mississippi, Louisiana and Alabama, the four states synods that support the institution. Dr. M. E. Morvin of Greensboro, N. C., secretary of the finance organization for the Presbyterian church, is in charge of the preliminary plans for the campaign, and the amount is assured.

The matter of the location of the school is expected to be definitely settled by Feb. 15. The action of the board of directors for the university must be approved by the four state synods interested, and it is expected to require about 30 days to bring about the meetings of the synods. The campaign of the church to raise $1,000,000 for the university will probably be made early in February.

Widow Tells About Bringing In Vessel
After Master Died

MOBILE, Ala., Jan. 2.—With flag flying at half-mast, out of respect for her skipper, who died at sea, the schooner Jean L. Somerville, of Boston, is anchored in Mobile river after an eventful passage from Las Palmas, the ship arriving in port in command of Mrs. W. F. Oram, wife of the dead master, who navigated the schooner when her husband fell ill. The body of the master will be shipped to Portland, Me., his home, today.

The story of how she struggled to nurse her husband back to health and assumed charge of the ship as navigator was told by Mrs. Oram. At Las Palmas the mate and cook left the vessel, but the Somerville put to sea with a short crew. The captain was taken ill a few days out of Las Palmas and grew steadily worse. However, he aided his wife as best he could in making charts and setting the sailing course for Mobile.

Several days out the schooner was spoken by a United Fruit company steamer and advised that the "captain was ill." The message was apparently garbled, for word was sent by radio from the fruiter that the captain of the Somerville was dead. Mrs. Oram stated that her husband, while ill since Nov. 10, when the day of passage out of Las Palmas began, lingered until last Saturday night. After his death she assumed complete charge of the vessel and successfully brought her to a position off Pensacola bar, where she was picked up by the steamer Moschoushio and towed into port. She was then brought to Mobile under tow, her original destination.

Mrs. Oram paid high tribute to members of the crew of the Somerville, who, she stated, had given her every assistance. She was the only person aboard able to navigate a ship.
